FARMS FOR SALE

I have some very good farms for sale, 120 to 320 acres, one to eight miles from a very good business town, population between 400 and 500, on the N. P. railroad in the Red River Valley grain belt. These farms are in good shape, good buildings, telephone lines and mail routes go past every farm. If you are planning to buy a farm for yourself, these are a safe and paying investment. This is an opportunity you shouldn't let pass by at the price I am offering these farms for. Apply to prisms upon Berlin for the zeppelin raids over London. It was apparent that the zeppelin itself was a helium bag and that it was no use to compete with Germany in making unyielding gas bags filled with inflammable hydrogen, for the anti-craft gun and incendiary projectiles were rapidly putting the zeppelins out of the game.

DIRIGIBLE JITNEYS TO BE POSSIBLE BY USE OF HELIUM BAGS

What the British needed was a non-inflammable gas, and the British intelligence office called the attention of the American government to the fact that an American chemist in 1907 had discovered helium to be mixed with the natural gas in certain parts of the west, and it respectfully suggested that an investigation be made.

Accordingly, Professor Cady and his forgotten monograph were dug up, and the occurrence of helium in natural gas was studied in a most elaborate way.

All Was Deep Secret. All of this was kept a secret at the time, and the story has probably not been told before. This we used in the plans for the non-inflammable gas being always referred to as argon, which is a related gas, but of no use for the purposes of aviation. There was great excitement in scientific circles. The army and navy, the bureau of mines and the bureau of standards, and all of the private concerns that owned processes for the separation of gases, were called into consultation. The army and navy put up the money and the scientific organizations did the work. First $28,000 was appropriated, then $100,000 and then $500,000, and the possibilities of the business opened up.

Britain Sends Chemists. The British government sent over two chemists to co-operate with the Americans, and placed an order for more helium than we could have produced in ten years. It also went to work at once building the airships in which the helium was to be used. All the plans were laid and a large part of the work done in a campaign which was intended to blow the city of Berlin off the map. And it seems reasonably certain that the trick would have been done in a few years, when enough helium had been produced. For the non-inflammable gas bags, mounting big guns, hanging thousands of feet above the city, would have been practically invulnerable, and terribly destructive.

As it was, we produced several hundred thousand feet of helium, and some of this was already loaded into steel tubes under heavy pressure and had been placed on the docks at New Orleans, ready for shipment to England, when the armistice was signed.

The cost of producing helium during the war was already loaded into steel tubes under heavy pressure and had been placed on the docks at New Orleans, ready for shipment to England, when the armistice was signed.

How to Build a Cook Fire
By Adella Belle Beard
Author, Artist, Secretary Girl Pioneers of America.

The outdoor world is the real world and the best one to live in—when you know how. But no one can live long in the open without a fire, and as we are going to take you out, first on short hikes, then on longer ones, you must learn the right way to build an outdoor fire. Get out of doors, then, if only in your back yard, and begin.

Begin with the COOK FIRE. Clear a space for it. No dry grass, no dry leaves, no branches near or overhead to spread the flames. Make the fire small and hot. There are several ways to build it. Here is one: Bunch your tinder on the ground and over it lay small twigs the size of match sticks. Place two large sticks, not far apart, one on each side of the tinder for andrions. These lift the firewood from the ground and allow for draft. Across the wooden andrions, over the tinder, arrange small sticks of soft wood, and over them crosswise put heavier kindling. Now get a good sized stone or green log, close to the outer side of each andrion. The same height from the ground. Light the tinder. Don't waste matches; when the fire burns briskly, add hard wood of larger size. Wait until you have a good bed of hot coals before trying to cook, then place water

ADVENTURES THAT MADE AN AMERICAN

Hunting Eye Sets Out to Find the League of Nations.
By R. S. Alexander, Associate Editor, Boys' and Girls' Newspaper Service.

All summer, Hunting Eye had helped go Swift Foot, the old Indian, guide the summer campers through the great North woods. Hunting Eye could tell the white men where to camp and where to fish, he could tell them the secrets of the woods and rivers; but he liked better to listen to them talk about the big world which he had never seen. He never tired of hearing about motor cars and air ships, about cities with wigwags higher than the highest trees in the forest, and about journeys across the sea in canoes longer than the arrow's flight.

things could be. "Many years ago," said Swift Foot, "the Indian and the white man fought the pipe of peace. It was a treaty, but it was not the 'League of Nations.'"

Hunting Eye resolved to ask the white Captain to tell him all about the League of Nations. But it was the end of the summer. That night the Captain went back to the great city. He was gone and no one could answer Hunting Eye's question.

Swift Foot, "to the new world where the white Captain lives, is many days' journey. The League of Nations is not here. It must be there." "I will go and see," said Hunting Eye.

The next morning he packed his pouch with food and took his bow, his arrows, and his knife, and turning his face toward the dawn in the east, started on his long journey.

(Next Wednesday: "Hunting Eye joins the Boy Scouts.")

Columbus Slumbers As Car Men Strike

Columbus, O., Sept. 3.—Columbus awoke this morning to find an unexpected strike of motormen and conductors of its street car lines. Thousands of workers were forced to walk or ride to work on wagons and trucks. The union carmen stated the strike had been called to obtain better working conditions and higher pay. Union men said conditions came to an issue between the men and the company yesterday when the men refused to run cars under broken trolley wires repaired by non-union linemen.

MAKING YOUR NAME BEAUTIFUL

We were having a discussion the other day as to the probable cost of a little trip some of us were contemplating.

Several of the group had offered estimates as to what they thought it would cost—estimates which were plainly colored by their tendencies to optimism or pessimism—when the husband of one of the members of the group came into the room.

"Oh, there's John," said several voices, at once. "Ask him. He'll know."

And he did.

Isn't it nice to be that sort of person; that is, to stand for definite, reliable knowledge?

But then, isn't it nice to stand in people's minds for any commendable quality?

People Who Make Their Names Trademarks.

We all know people who have made their names trademarks of some fine quality.

There's the woman who stands for trustworthiness. If you can get her on your committee you know that the part of the work assigned to her will be done and done properly. You need not fear that she will make excuses offered you instead of results.

EVANSVILLE SERVICE

MEN ORGANIZE POST

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Evansville, Sept. 3.—Last Friday evening several of the returned service men met in the city hall to consider the matter of organizing a post of the American legion. Application was made and the charter is expected to arrive soon. The post here will be called the McKinney post, in honor of Harry McKinney, who was killed in action at the battle of Cantigny, Robert Collins was made temporary chairman. He has called a meeting for Thursday evening in the city hall. Officers will then be elected and a report given by Orin McElroy, who attended the convention of the American legion in Milwaukee, Aug. 31 and Sept. 2. All men in service between April 7, 1917, and Nov. 11, 1918, are invited to be present.

I can drop the luncheon out of my mind," you say. "Eleanor has charge of it."

She stands for loyal reticence. And then there's the man or woman who stands for loyal reticence. You know you can tell him or her anything and not have it a town topic next week. "It's perfectly safe with Edith," you say.

Then there's the man or woman (usually the latter) with the great gift of making things go. No group of which she is the centre will ever fail to enjoy itself, no party at which she is present will ever be slow and awkward. She is the sort of person who makes one feel that another candle has been lighted when she enters the room. "I've put Nolly at that able," you say. "So I know they'll have a good time."

Even if It Isn't Beautiful At First.

"I think people make their names nice or ugly just by what they are themselves," says the good-looking Mrs. J. S. Pulett, who is a beauty even if it wasn't beautiful to begin with, making it stand in people's thoughts for something so lovely and pleasant that they never think of it by itself.

What does your name stand for? Something that makes the name beautiful itself?

Friends here. Mrs. Frost and little daughter, who have been visiting here for the past few weeks, returned home with him.

Mrs. J. S. Pulett entertained several young women yesterday afternoon in honor of her sister, Miss Sallie Maxwell, La Crosse, who is spending her vacation here.

Velvet Always Hits a 3 Bagger: Sight! Smell!! Taste!!!

THEN it's easy to get to the home-plate, right where you snuggle down in an old coat and slippers to enjoy life.

To begin with, Velvet Tobacco, in its jolly red tin, has a wholesome generous look to it. Nothing namby-pamby about it. A red-blooded tin full of red-blooded tobacco, for red-blooded folks.

Open it up—and you get the fragrance that Nature stored in the tobacco during eight changing seasons, while it mellowed in great wooden hogsheads.

And say! It's great! That good, natural fragrance of Kentucky's wonder tobacco—Burley—King of Pipe-land. No camouflage about it. No dolling up.

Pack a pipelod. Light up and you'll get the fragrance of real tobacco—the incense to solid comfort.

And a mild, pleasant taste, that only our Nature-ageing method can impart. You will never taste a finer cigarette than the one you roll with Velvet.

Fifteen cents a tin—not a cent more.

Batter up!

REAL AMERICANS.

Considerable talk is heard these days about Americanization. Every American realizes that complete Americanization of all foreigners who wish to make a home in this country and enjoy the fruits of its freedom and prosperity is desirable. We do not again wish to witness the confusion which resulted when we were drawn into the German war. Our first thought at the time the declaration of war was made was whether the foreigners would stand fast and patriotically do their share on the front, though they could not go to the front. They did show their regard for the land of their adoption in the majority, but out of the hundreds of thousands, thousands proved cowards or bolshewists. It is these thousands who can either be cured by a sound and thorough course of Americanization or who can be shipped back to their native lands where they can practice their radical acts to their hearts' content.

It is the duty of every man who has business interests in the United States as well as those who are interested in the future welfare of the nation to get behind this Americanization plan. The old method of giving a foreigner his naturalization papers after he has answered a few perfunctory questions in a parrot-like way will no more stand. The court-made American of the future must be an American in language, habits, customs, ideals and morality. He can only be moulded along those lines through education. When he receives his diploma from Uncle Sam he must be able to stand on both feet squarely, and show that he has caught the American spirit.

This Americanization cannot be brought about successfully unless every co-operation is given. Schools in every community where many foreigners live should be maintained, possibly at night. This education should be thorough. This can only be made possible by business men taking an active interest. This is especially true of employers of labor used in factories.

As far as we are concerned locally the need for immediate action along these lines perhaps is not great for we do not have many foreigners in Janesville, but with increased population in connection with the Americanization project, the federal government should enact deportation legislation which would give the foreigner coming to this country but two choices—to become an AMERICAN or to go back to his native land at first indication that he does not take sufficient interest to assure his progress.

ANOTHER ANSWER.

Wisconsin has again shown her loyalty and patriotism. The hearty endorsement given the soldiers' bonus bill silences once for all the underground rumor which had been circulated for days before the ballots were cast yesterday that an attempt would be made to defeat the measure.

The people of the state have fulfilled their pledges made when their men and women were fighting the enemy and caring for the wounded. Every discharged soldier, sailor or marine, and every Red Cross nurse who either served in France or were preparing for overseas service at the time hostilities ceased will receive a gift of $10 per month for every month in service, the minimum to $50. The legislature will convene immediately to ratify the will of the people by the passage of the law and the machinery for distribution will be set in motion at once.

While the gift in itself will be appreciated by those who made sacrifices, the spirit with which it was made has warmed the hearts of every Wisconsin soldier and nurse who will accept, as well as those who made the gift. If the results of the balloting yesterday had been close there perhaps would have been a feeling of doubt in the minds of the beneficiaries as to whether the people of the state were in earnest when in the dark days of 1918 they made their promises to stand back of their soldiers. But with such an overwhelming majority such was given the value of the gift is doubted.

Rock county's splendid response to the call of the soldiers is most pleasing. The figures show that the referendum carried by better than a six to one vote.

WE NEED MORE.

One policeman at least who has been acting as traffic policeman this week has the right idea. He does not play any favorites and has called several drivers to account for their actions. He has been directing traffic at Main and Milwaukee streets. Those who do not obey his instructions have been held up and given a warning with the promise that the next time a trip to the police station will be necessary. He is right and should be given encouragement.

Many drivers of cars have felt that they are privileged persons and have abused the traffic laws and the rights of citizens too long. A court fine might change their ideas of the rights of others and make the streets more safe for both pedestrians and sane auto drivers. We hope other traffic officers will be as firm in handling traffic as the one who watched Tuesday while many automobiles were on the streets. Although he was threatened being reported to higher officials because he called down a driver who claimed he had a "pull," the policeman insisted on being obeyed. Those are the kind of men we need.

on the force—men who know what their duties are and who will play no favorites and who fear no one in positions higher up as long as they take care of their jobs. These men will have the backing of the public in general.

Rock county should be thankful that there are only 773 voters in the balloting who felt that the soldiers were not entitled to a gift from the people. Perhaps they did not make any pledges to the fighters when the war was at its height.

Lot of these youngsters who have been letting their toes grow and spread during vacation had better begin right now to get accustomed to those new shoes. If they do not, they are going to hurt next Monday morning when they are donned for school.

A Wausau man's cure for rheumatism failed, proving that it is a most difficult disease to combat. He was afflicted with pains in his toes and attempted to remove seat of the trouble by chopping them off with an axe. He died.

It is reported that the railroad administration can show a surplus of $2,000,000 for the month of July. It ought to show something. It has not furnished adequate service as far as we can learn.

Armour says that food prices will be lowered. He should know. He knows more about food and prices than the average man.

We may again breathe easy. It is announced that the actors' strike is about to end.

ASK US

The Gazette maintains an information bureau at Washington, D. C., under the direction of Frederic J. Haskin. Questions will be answered on any subject. Those desiring information write a letter to the Janesville Daily Gazette Information Bureau, Washington, D. C., and enclose a stamp. The letter will be answered by our bureau.

Q. To what men may a Mohammedan woman with propriety show her face? T. E. S. S. A. The Mohammedan woman may show her face only to men whom she may not marry. This means that a man may see the face of his mother, wife, sisters, daughters, aunts, and non other of the women of his class.

Q. What is the largest word in the language from the standpoint of its meaning? B. G. T. A. That is naturally a subject upon which there would be much debate. Justification, however, is undoubtedly a competitor for the honor, as is right, truth, love, God.

Q. How many moving pictures are there in the United States? M. E. A. The best estimate available for the number of moving picture theaters in the United States is 34,000. These theaters receive about 100 million admissions in the course of a year, which, on the basis of 10 cents an admission, would amount to $600,000,000.

Q. What is a good sunburn lotion? C. W. A. The following is highly recommended: Stir with half a pint hot water a level tablespoonful of borax, add 20 drops of carbolic acid and shake well. The solution should be dabbed on the inflamed skin with a small piece of cotton or sprayed with an atomizer every hour.

Q. What is the origin of the names of the New England states? P. A. Connecticut is an Indian word meaning long river; Maine is regarded as of French origin from the Province of Maine; Massachusetts is an Indian word meaning "Place of Great Hills"; New Hampshire is English, coming from Hampshire county, England; Vermont is French, "Vert mont," meaning "green hills." With reference to Rhode Island there is a difference of opinion, some claiming that it was named for the Island of Rhode, and others for a prominent settler named Rhodes.

Q. May Germans now come to the United States? B. T. H. A. Technically the United States and Germany are still at war and citizens of the latter country are not admitted. This condition will prevail until the peace treaty has been ratified.

Q. What is a split infinitive? R. S. U. A. The usual form of split infinitive is one in which an adverb is interposed between the preposition and the verb. "To quickly stop," for instance, is a split infinitive. It is assuredly bad usage to split infinitives, it is often done in speech and in print.

Germany's Coal Terms Revised to Meet Supply

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Copenhagen, Sept. 2.—As a result of negotiations at Versailles it has been decided that Germany within the next six months shall deliver 20,000,000 tons of coal to France as compared with the 42,000,000 tons provided for by the terms of the peace treaty, a German official statement received here said. If Germany's coal production exceeds the present level of about 108,000,000 tons annually, 80 percent of the extra production up to 128,000,000 tons shall be delivered to the allies, and 80 percent of any extra production beyond that amount until the figure provided for in the peace treaty is reached. This arrangement, it is added, shall only be valid if Germany begins immediate delivery of the coal.

PORTO RICAN FORESTS.
Unless you have been in the tropics you naturally think of a tropical island as covered thickly with jungle. As a matter of fact a large part of the lands in our American tropics, the Caribbean region, are almost devoid of forest. These islands have been settled for so long that nearly all of their forests were cut centuries ago.

Porto Rico, for example, has scarcely any forest land, except along the coast. Her mountains and hills are covered with a low growth which is pretty, but it is hard to find a tree big enough to sit under. The island government recently formed a forest service and hired an American forester to take charge of the work of reforesting the island.
St. Thomas is another island that has but few trees. Most of them were cut back in the days when pirates sailed the Spanish Main, and came regularly to St. Thomas to get supplies and visit their Creole sweethearts.
Quite different is the case of Santo Domingo. This island is composed largely of mountains which are very steep and rise to a height of ten thousand feet. The result has been that it has been impossible to get out the timber except along the rivers. The great forests of tropical hardwoods remain untouched, while in the high mountains there are large areas covered with a sort of pine.

419 EGGS FROM 20 MOULTING HENS

Mr. Dougherty Got This Result in One Month. Plan is Easily Tried.

"I tried Don Sung and the results were far past any expectations. I got 419 eggs in 30 days from 20 hens while moulting. I think this is wonderful as they hardly laid at all before while moulting."—Frank Dougherty, 5940 E. 11th St., Indianapolis.
Mr. Dougherty bought $1 worth of Don Sung (Chinese for egg-laying) works directly on the egg-laying organs, and is also a splendid tonic. It is easily given in the feed, improves the hen's health, makes her stronger and more active in any weather, helps her through the moult, and starts her laying again.
Try Don Sung for 30 days and if it doesn't get you the eggs, no matter how cold or wet the weather, your money will be refunded by return mail. Get Don Sung from your druggist or post him a letter, enclosing $1 for a package by mail prepaid. Burrell-Dugger Co., 249 Columbia Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am eighteen years old and in love with a widower, thirty who has four children, aged one and one-half to eight years. He has a nice country home, a car, and seems to care a great deal for me.

He has asked me to marry him, since the death of his wife and if I should marry him she would continue making that her home. Do you think I could be happy with his mother there or would it cause trouble? My parents do not want me to marry him, but I find I do love him very much.

It seems to me you are too young to marry. If I were you I would ask the man for six months to think it over. Six months is a very short time, but it would be better than to become engaged now, because it would give you time to know each other better.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of seventeen years and have been going with a boy about ten months. I am engaged to him and during all the time we have gone together I have not gone with any other boy or had any desire to. He has not gone with any other girl, but has been corresponding with another girl. He says that she is just a dear friend.

My parents do not approve of my marrying until I am eighteen years of age, but the boy wants to get married right away. He says if I insist that he will wait until I am that age.

(4) Do you think I am too young to marry if I really love the boy?

(5) Do you think he really loves me and is true to me, if he writes to another girl?

(6) Do you think it wrong to marry against a parent's wishes?

(7) Do you think he really loves me if he is willing to wait a year?

BROWN EYES.

(1) I do think you are too young to marry.

(2) He can love you and still want to write to another girl.

(3) A girl of your age should not marry against the wishes of her parents.

(4) Of course he loves you. He wants you to be sure.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young woman married to my second husband. My first husband and I had a little girl. It is my second husband's fault that my first husband and I parted. Now he accuses me of doing things I do not think of doing, and it seems as if my girl does not do anything to please him and he talks very crossly to her.

He will never go out at night with me. When I ask him to, he is tired, and if I want to go alone he says I go he will lock the door and not let me in.

This husband makes me feel badly all the time and I have found out that I like my first husband better. I have a first husband better. He says I have a home any time I want it. Please give me your advice.

MRS. M. R.

I hope that "Unhappy Wife" will read your letter. She may profit by your advice and remain true to her husband. You are suffering the natural consequences of leaving a good and loyal husband for a man who is not in honor that he will steal another man's wife.

If your first husband is willing to take you back, I think you had better go to him for the sake of your child. Her life must be very unhappy and she is entitled to her own father's love.

You cannot expect to return to your first husband and find him as you were when you left. You have killed his faith in you, and although he may still be as good to you, you will find something lacking.

stirring almost constantly. It should then be like a thick cream. Season to taste with salt and pepper, and serve hot with grated cheese. If made from ham broth, tiny bits of ham may be added to the soup. If from chicken stock, bits of chicken liver will make it very tasty.

Golden Rod Eggs—Remove shell from four hard-boiled eggs; chop white finely; add one and one-half cups white sauce; press yolks through sieve and add seasoning; pour white sauce over toast arranged on platter and garnish with yolks of eggs and parsley.

HELPS IN IRONING.

In ironing tablecloths and napkins be sure to iron with the warp. Fine linens should be ironed first on the wrong side and then on the right, to make pattern stand out clear. When in a hurry to iron dry clothes sprinkle them with very hot water, or use cold water and wrap them in a bath towel, placing them in a moderately hot oven. In either case they will be ready for the iron within half an hour. When ironing clothes always place them in two piles. Those which need mending may be put in one lot and those which are perfect in another. While ironing it is easy to rupture a corn piece or where a button is missing.

ing. In ironing boards on both sides is a good plan. You need not be afraid of soiling the daintiest white garment, for you iron the colored things on one side and the white on the other. Tackling the padding to the board on the edges is how the task is accomplished.

Canadian Food Prices Much Lower Than Here

(BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.)

Boston.—Food prices in Canada are much lower than in the United States, according to a Boston man who returned from an automobile tour of the Maritime Provinces.

Here are some of the prices in several city markets he visited. Sugar, 15 cents a quart; blueberries, 10 cents a quart; cucumbers, 10 cents per dozen, two dozen for 15 cents; beets, twenty-four in a bunch, 15 cents; carrots, seventy-two in a bunch, 25 cents; green corn, 25 cents for two dozen ears; cabbage, twelve large heads, 40 cents; ripe tomatoes, 20 cents a large basket; new potatoes, ninety pounds for $2.25; large turnips, twelve in a bunch, two bunches for 25 cents; radishes, twenty to the bunch, twelve bunches for 25 cents; lettuce, large heads, 15 cents; Boston.

A DISCOVERY THAT BENEFITS MANKIND

Two discoveries have added greatly to human welfare.

In 1855 Newton originated the vacuum process for condensing milk with cane sugar to a semi-liquid form.

In 1883 Horlick as a result of his discovery covered how to reduce milk to a dry powder form with extract of malted grains, without cane sugar.

This product HORLICK named Malted Milk. (Name since copied by others.) Its nutritive value, digestibility and ease of preparation (by simply stirring in water) and the fact that it keeps in any climate, has proved of much value to mankind as an ideal food-drink from infancy to old age.

A CHANCE TO LIVE

THE PROTEST MOTHERS.

The crowd thickened until Annie, and three half-sisters, were shot and killed by marauders twice doorway to wait and see if the thing should not end as suddenly as it began, and her path to the Gubin shop be opened.

The excitement, however, was not quite of the casual sort she had seen before. Like her quarrel with Bernie, it was the bursting forth of many pent-up grievances. The more they talked the more their anger grew. A tornado of rage was soon sweeping the women out of all self-control. Ear-splitting clamorings in Yiddish and English dinning through the air. Boys began to catcall, babies to cry. The hoarse shouts of hucksters rumbled through the feminine chorus.

The mob swayed back and forth. Frenzied pushcart men, straining to save their property. There was no longer any center to the multitude. The woman who had started it was lost to Annie's view. Every one was pushing, waving arms, shouting protests and suggestions for a remedy.

Suddenly an alarm was raised that the policeman was coming. The mass of women with the helpless pedestrians in the center of it tightened and surged in the opposite direction. A pushcart upset. The fruit and vegetables were crushed under foot in an instant. The midday, August sun, raised a shimmering haze. Several other carts were wilfully pushed over, their wares trodden viciously in the filth of the gutter, while the sellers tore their beads and raised a wail to heaven.

Three policemen with shouts and club warnings, shoved the crowd before them. Annie saw agonian detach herself from the thick of the press, spring upon a pile of boxes in front of a provision store. Waving her hands for silence, she began speaking rapidly in Yiddish.

"It's the leader! It's the leader!" Annie heard several quick whispers, with pointings toward the stocky figure on the boxes.

It took her but a few seconds to make her plea.

"Here, you women!" was something of what she said. "How long will you stand this treatment! Let us go down to the millionaire mayor of this city and tell him our children are starving, that we are being robbed, that his policemen break our heads because we make our protest! Come! I will take you. Come as you are. Come now! I will talk for you. I will tell him we must give us bread."

"How, there, get down out of that and stop your noise," shouted a blue-coat, as he and his allies worked their way to where she stood. "Get that talk! It won't do no good." He didn't know what she was saying, but he guessed it closely. It was "some kind of mischief," she was plotting, and that was enough.

"Remember—today!" the woman flung her final word and scrambled down from her makeshift platform.

Little by little the assemblage melted into its tenements and byrecesses. The pushcart men, calling up Jehovah to witness their ruin, salvaged what they could of their stocks, raking the gutters with trembling hands. Lurching beast them with joes and pranks. The policemen stood around for a while with an air of half-good-humored severity, and then disappeared one by one.

HEALTH TALKS

THE BEST CURE FOR TBC

It consumes 5 percent more energy to sit at rest in a chair than it does to rest in bed. This 25 percent of energy is worth saving in many illnesses, although it is difficult to make some patients conserve energy in this way when they feel able to be up and about.

Sitting up and conversing with friends and visitors consumes 45 percent more energy than is consumed by the same individual lying at rest.

Dr. F. M. Pittenger of California states that the treatment of tuberculosis, but when he found that it did no good he stopped it and adopted the rest cure instead, and began to get the cure points out that it is not enough to tell the patient to rest, as if he understood how it should be carried out.

MY HEAD!

Auto-intoxication can be best ascribed to our own neglect or carelessness. When the organs fail in the discharge of their duties, the putrefactive germs set in and generate toxins—actual poisons, which fill one's own body.

Sleepiness after meals, flushing of the face, extreme lassitude, biliousness, dizziness, sick headache, acidity of the stomach, heartburn, offensive breath, anemia, loss of weight and muscular power, decrease of vitality or lowering of resistance to infectious diseases, disturbance of the eye, dyspepsia, indigestion, gastritis, many forms of catarrh, asthma, ear affections and allied ailments result from auto-intoxication or self-poisoning.

Take castor oil, or procure at the drug store, a pleasant vegetable laxative, called Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, composed of May-apple, aloes and jalap.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

The Injurious Salt Habit.

Please inform me if it is harmful to take teaspoonfuls of salt every morning in a glass of water for constipation. Would a good aperient mineral water be better? (Mrs. A. E.)

ANSWER—Yes, it is a very crude physic, moving the bowels by extracting water from the mucous membrane, an irritating process. Of course a mineral water would have the same effect. The constant use of salts ultimately establishes a very obstinate constipation, and also irritates the kidneys.

Navel Rupture.

Our baby boy, four months old, has a navel rupture the size of a half dollar. It is held by a band with a pad over the point of rupture. Our doctor advises an operation. Please tell us what you think. He grows fast and is growing all the time. (W. D. S.)

ANSWER—Operation is doubtless the wisest course.

More than one-half the national forests in the Oregon-Washington district have made use of the services of women as lookouts, patrols and in nursery work.

The magnificent Ambersons

"Vendoh was an unspeakable case," Lucy continued. "He was so proud that he wore iron shoes, and he walked over people's faces with them. He was always killing people that way, and so at last the tribe decided that it wasn't a good enough excuse for him that he was young and inexperienced—he'd have to go. They took him down to the river, and put him in a canoe, and pushed him out from shore; and then they ran along the bank and wouldn't let him land, until at last the current carried the canoe out into the middle, and then on down to the ocean, and he never got back. They didn't want him back, of course, and if he'd been able to manage it, they'd have put him in another canoe and shoved him out into the river again. But still, they didn't elect another chief in his place. Other tribes thought that was curious, and wondered about it a lot, but finally they came to the conclusion that the beach grove people were afraid a new chief might turn out to be a bad Indian, too, and wear iron shoes like Vendoh. But they were wrong, because the real reason was that the tribe had led such an exciting life under Vendoh that they couldn't settle down to anything tamer. He was awful, but he always kept things happening—terrible things, of course. They hated him, but they weren't able to discover any other warrior that they wanted to make chief in his place. They couldn't help feeling that way."

"I see," said Eugene. "So that's why they named the place 'They-Couldn't-Help-It'?"

"It must have been."

"And so you're going to stay here in your garden," he said musingly. "You think it's better to keep on walking these sunshiny gravel paths between your flower beds, and growing to look like a pensive garden lady in a Victorian engraving."

"I suppose I'm like the tribe that lived here, papa. I had too much unpleasant excitement. It was unpleasant—but it was excitement. I don't want any more; in fact, I don't want anything but you."

"You don't?" He looked at her keenly, and she laughed and shook her head; but he seemed perplexed, rather startled. "What was the name of the grove?" he asked. "The Indian name, I mean."

"Haha-Haha."

"No, it wasn't; that wasn't the name you said."

"I've forgotten."

"I see you have," he said, his look of perplexity remaining. "Perhaps you remember the chief's name better."

She shook her head again. "I don't!"

At this he laughed, but not very heartily, and walked slowly to the house, leaving her bending over a rose bush, and a shade more pensive than the most pensive garden lady in any Victorian engraving. . . . Next day, it happened that this same "Vendoh" or "Rides-Down-Everything" became the subject of a chance conversation between Eugene and his old friend Kinney, father of the fire-topped Fred. The two gentlemen found themselves smoking in neighboring leather chairs beside a broad window at the club, after lunch.

Mr. Kinney had remarked that he expected to get his family established at the seashore by the Fourth of July, and, following a train of thought, he paused and chuckled. "Fourth of July reminds me," he said. "Have you heard what that George Minafer is doing?"

"No, I haven't," said Eugene, and his friend failed to notice the crispness of the utterance.

"Well, sir," Kinney chuckled again. "It beats the devil! My boy Fred told me about it yesterday. He's a friend of this young Henry Akers, son of F. P. Akers of the Akers Chemical company. It seems this young Akers asked Fred if he knew a fellow named Minafer, because he knew Fred had always lived here, and young Akers had heard some way that Minafer used to be an old family name here, and was sort of curious about it. Well, sir, you remember this young George sort of disappeared, after his grandfather's death, and nobody seemed to know much what had become of him—though I did hear, once or twice, that he was still around somewhere. Well, sir, he's working for the Akers Chemical company, out at their plant on the Thomasville road."

He paused, seeming to reserve something to be delivered only upon inquiry, and Eugene offered him the expected question, but only after a cold glance through the nose-glasses he had lately found it necessary to adopt. "What does he do?"

Kinney laughed and slapped the arm of his chair. "He's a nitro-glycerin expert!"

He was gratified to see that Eugene was surprised, if not, indeed, a little

THAT'S DIFFERENT

By Probasco.

He's an expert on nitro-glycerin. Does that beat the devil? Yes, sir! Young Akers told Fred that this George Minafer had worked like a hound-dog ever since he got started out at the works. They have a special plant for nitro-glycerin, way off from the main plant, of course—in the woods somewhere—and George Minafer's been working there, and lately they put him in charge of it. He oversees shooting oil wells, too, and shoots 'em himself, sometimes. They aren't allowed to carry it on the railroads, you know—have to team it. Young Akers says George rides around over the bumpy roads, sitting on as much as three hundred quarts of nitro-glycerin! My Lord! Talk about romantic tumbles! If he gets blown sky-high some day he won't have a bigger drop, when he comes down, than he's already had! Don't it beat the devil! Young Akers said he's got all the nerve there is in the world. Says he gets a fair salary, and I should think he ought to! Seems to me I've heard the average life in that sort of work is somewhere around four years, and agents don't write any insurance at all for nitro-glycerin experts. Hardly!"

"No," said Eugene. "I suppose not." Kinney rose to go. "Well, it's a pretty funny thing—pretty odd, I mean—and I suppose it would be pass-around-that-for old Fanny Minafer if he blew up. Fred told me that they're living in some apartment house, and said George supports her. He was going to study law, but couldn't earn enough that way to take care of Fanny, so he gave it up. Fred's wife told him all this. Says Fanny doesn't do anything but play bridge these days. Got to playing too high for awhile and lost more than she wanted to tell George about, and borrowed a little from old Frank Bronson. Paid him back, though. Don't know how Fred's wife heard it. Women do hear the darndest things!"

"They do," Eugene agreed.

"Well, I'm off to the store," said Mr. Kinney briskly; yet he lingered. "I suppose we'll all have to club in and keep old Fanny out of the poorhouse if he does blow up. From all I hear it's usually only a question of time. They say she hasn't got anything else to depend on."

"I suppose not."

"Well—I wondered—" Kinney hesitated. "I was wondering why you hadn't thought of finding something around your works for him. You used to be such a tremendous friend of the family—I thought perhaps you of course I know he's a queer lot—I know he's—"

"Yes, I think he is," said Eugene. "No, I haven't anything to offer him."

"I suppose not," Kinney returned thoughtfully, as he went on. "I don't know that I would myself. Well, we'll probably see his name in the papers some day if he stays with that job!"

However, the nitro-glycerin expert of whom they spoke did not get into the papers as a consequence of being blown up, although his daily life was certainly a continuous exposure to that risk. Destiny has a constant passion for the incongruous, and it was George's lot to manipulate wholesale quantities of terrific and volatile explosives in safety, and to be laid low by an accident so commonplace and inconsequent that it was a comedy. Fate had reserved for him the final insult of riding him down under the wheels of one of those juggernauts at which he had once shouted "Git a hoss!" Nevertheless, Fate's ironic choice for George's machine was not a big and swift and momentous car, such as Eugene manufactured; it was a specimen of the hustling little type that was flooding the country, the cheapest, commonest, hardest little car ever made.

The accident took place upon a Sunday morning, on a downtown crossing, with the streets almost empty, and no reason in the world for such a thing to happen. He had gone out for his Sunday morning walk, and he was thinking of an automobile at the very moment when the little car struck him; he was thinking of a shiny lantern and a churning figure stepping into it, and of the quick gesture of a white glove toward the chauffeur, motioning him to go on. George heard a shout, but did not look up, for he could not imagine anybody's shouting at him, and he got too engrossed in the question, "Was it Lucy?" He could not de-

At the second and louder shout he did look up; and the car was almost on him; but he could not make up his mind if the charming little figure he had seen was Lucy's and he could not make up his mind whether to go backward or forward; these questions became entangled in his mind. These Tires Are a Revelation

The Brunswick is frankly a combination of the best in tire building.

There is one tread that's supreme beyond question. And that is now on Brunswicks.

There is one side-wall construction, which, by every test, holds the summit place for endurance. And that one was adopted for Brunswicks.

Fabrics differ—up to 30 per cent—in their strength tests. On Brunswicks the maximum long-fiber is the standard.

There are certain additions, each one expensive, which add vastly to tire mileage. The Brunswick embodies all these extras.

There are no patents, no secret formulas to prevent any maker from building the best. It is simply a question of knowledge and skill—cost plus care.

Brunswick standards are known the world over. The very name certifies an extraordinary tire. Yet Brunswicks cost no more than like-type tires.

Buy ONE Brunswick. It will prove that a better tire can't be bought, regardless of price.

FIRM FOUNDATION

Nothing Can Undermine It in Janesville.

People are sometimes slow to recognize true merit, and they cannot be blamed, for so many have been humbugged in the past. The experience of many Janesville residents, expressed publicly through newspapers and other sources, places Doan's Kidney Pills on a firm foundation here.

S. E. Moore, carpenter, 615 Park Ave., Janesville, says: "I think the straining and stooping I did in my work was responsible for my kidneys getting out of order. I had pains through the small of my back, and when I stooped over I could hardly get up again. Doan's Kidney Pills quickly stopped the pain in my back and my kidneys again did their work as they should."

NOW IS A GOOD TIME TO DRIVE OUT CATARRH

It May Not Be Troubling You During the Warm Weather, But It Is Still in Your Blood.

Catarrh is not only a disgusting disease but is a dangerous one, and you should never let up in your efforts to get it out of your system until you have done it thoroughly. Get rid of it, whatever it costs you in trouble and money.

There is no use in permitting yourself to be deceived. Perhaps, like thousands of others afflicted with Catarrh, you are about ready to believe that the disease is incurable, and that you are doomed to spend the remainder of your days hawking and spitting, with no relief in sight from inflamed and stopped-up air passages that make the days miserable and the nights sleepless.

Of course this all depends upon whether or not you are willing to continue the old-time, make-shift methods of treatment that you and many other sufferers have used for years with no substantial results.

You must realize that the disease itself, and not its symptoms, is what you have to cure. Of course you know that when you are cured of any disease its symptoms will disappear.

Catarrh manifests itself by inflammation of the delicate membranes of the nose and air passages, which choke up and make breathing very difficult. To get rid of these distressing effects you must remove their cause.

Don't be misled into thinking your catarrh is gone. The first touch of winter weather will bring it back with all of its discomforts.

The blood is laden with the Catarrh germs, which direct their attack against the tender and delicate membranes of the nose and throat. These germs cannot be reached by sprays or douches, which, of course, have no effect whatever upon the blood.

Mild weather will aid the treatment and this is an excellent time to thoroughly cleanse the blood of the germs of Catarrh and be forever rid of the troublesome sprays and douches that can only relieve you for the time.

S. S. S. is a purely vegetable blood remedy, made from roots and herbs direct from the forest, which combat promptly disease germs or impurities in the blood. This great remedy has been used for more than fifty years, with most satisfactory results. It has been successfully used by those afflicted with even the severest cases of Catarrh. It relieves catarrh thoroughly, for it treats the disease at its source. S. S. S. is sold by druggists everywhere.

For the benefit of those afflicted with catarrh or other blood diseases, we maintain a medical department in charge of a specialist skilled in these diseases. If you will write us fully, he will give your case careful study, and write you just what your own individual case requires. No charge is made for this service. DONNA NUT WINS FIRST IN 2:25 PACE

It took five heats to return Donna Nut victor over Sis Direct in a field of five horses in the 2:25 pace for a $500 purse, the feature event of yesterday's race program at the Jansville fair.

Silver Lou, owned by Oscar Lindahl, Durand, Ill., and driven by George Spencer, Jansville, had little trouble in drawing first money in the only other race, the 2:30 trot, winning in straight heats with a field of four starters.

The fight for first money in the 2:25 pace was the exciting part of the day's program and although the crowd, outside of the children, was small, a good deal of interest was shown in the winning race. Donna Nut, driven by Earl Davis, Wauconda, Ill., to the wire ahead. In each heat, the little bay gelding sent Sis Direct, owned by Earl Davis, Wauconda, Ill., to the wire ahead. In each heat, the little bay gelding sent Sis Direct, owned by Earl Davis, Wauconda, Ill., to the wire ahead.

It looked like a victory for Sis Direct when the fourth heat was called, but Donna Nut showed new life and finished a good 40 feet in front of the Direct, putting the two into a tie for honors, each with two firsts and two seconds. Dean let his horse trail again in the last heat, evidently planning to strike on the half-mile track when he suddenly uncovered a burst of speed and forged ahead, winning one heat by a yard and the other by a length.

Nut stays speed. Dean let his horse trail again in the last heat, evidently planning to strike on the half-mile track when he suddenly uncovered a burst of speed and forged ahead, winning one heat by a yard and the other by a length.

The best time made was 2:12 1/2 by Sis Direct in the third heat. There were three other starters, Hale Chaffin, Milwaukee, taking third money, and Golden Morgan, owned and driven by Dr. W. P. Goring, Chicago, finishing fourth. George Spencer, driving his own horse, Don Wakefield, was distanced and drawn in the third heat.

Spencer showed his great reinmanship in the 2:30 trot for a $500 purse, when he won with Silver Lou in straight heats, bettering her time in each heat. The only real scare in the heat when Mary McKerron, owned by R. J. Gittins, Racine, finished a nose behind in a lightning wind-up. The best time recorded in this race, but Tetraxine was distanced and drawn in the initial round.

John L. Fisher, who acted as starter yesterday, again showed speed in sending the horses away. There was not a single hitch in the afternoon's program. The scores:

Rebellious Coal Locals Have Charters Revoked

[By Associated Press.] Springfield, Ill., Sept. 2.—Charters of 24 coal mine locals in Illinois in rebellion against constituted authority have been revoked, Frank Farrington, state miners president announced today.

Action of the miners' executive was in consequence of an order that the unauthorized strike of insurgents be ended prior to last Saturday on pain of loss of charters.

President Farrington said locals expelled would be reorganized.

BRINGING UP FATHER

CHILDREN'S RACES AT FAIR FURNISH MUCH EXCITEMENT

Keen competition in all events made the children's race program at the fair yesterday a complete success. The pony and foot races furnished plenty of amusement and excitement to the kiddies in the grandstand and especially to a fair-sized crowd of adults.

The most amusing spectacle of the day came in the boys' pony race when Horace Schmidley, riding a stubborn animal, failed to negotiate the turn on the home stretch of the half-mile track. The pony jogged off the track, down the slope to the mile circuit, and started for the gate. In the excitement young Schmidley lost control of the reins and slid to the ground, unhurt. He remounted and trotted in, taking third money—only three ponies were entered. Charles Rockwell easily took first money in this event, while Robert Morton finished second.

In the girls' pony race, Marjorie Hooper, in an exciting finish, bounded into first place over her only competitor, Jane Krotz.

Robert Morton took first money in the free-for-all horse race, while Charles Rockwell finished second. There were four entries in this event. Margaret Clark was first and Nellie St. John was second in the free-for-all horse race for girls. Little Miss Clark showed some riding ability in this race that could not be equalled by any of the boys.

With 32 entries, Charles Munson grabbed first prize in the 100-yard dash for boys, while William Thorpe finished second and Mike Dawson third.

The events were staged between the heats of the 2:25 pace and the 2:30 trot.

SPORT SNAP-SHOTS

BY JACK KEENE.

"I see that some folks are intent upon putting me into the welterweight class." The speaker was Benny Leonard, lightweight champion of the world, and he was referring to the recent revival of the almost threadbare story that he scales so much over lightweight poundage that it would be impossible for him to make weight to defend his title against a legitimate contender for the crown. In endeavoring to drive home the force of their opinion those who only voice the argument that Leonard has outgrown the lightweight division point to the fact that Benny has repeatedly declined to box Lew Tendler, the perennial lightweight challenger of Philadelphia, who seldom tips the beam at more than 132 pounds, but recently agreed to mingle in the same ring with Soldier Bartfield, a full-grown welterweight.

These Leonard critics are emphatic in asserting that he refuses to box Tendler because he knows the Philadelphia would insist that he make at least 135 pounds ringside; that Tendler would not engage him at catch weights. Leonard just as emphatically denies this.

"I am just as much of a lightweight as I was on that night at Manhattan Casino when I stopped Prell, the Welsh and won the world's championship," Leonard was inclined to plausibility. "I don't think I can defeat Bartfield. I went out of the lightweight class when I boxed Willie Mitchell and Ted Kid Lewis. I didn't hear any raucous shouts against my meeting those two boxers and believe me, I was taking long chances against both of them."
